Magazine CEP Magazine (Compliance & Ethics Professional)

Editorial Calendar

JANUARY (due 10/1/19)

Compliance budgeting
How to prioritize and get the funding you want from the board

FEBRUARY (due 11/1/19)

The supplier’s code of conduct
The elements to consider, how to develop this document, and how to use it going forward

MARCH (due 12/1/19)

Whistleblower protection
The EU has set a date for ensuring effective whistleblower protection. What does this mean for both EU and non-EU organizations, and what can they do over the next year to prepare?

APRIL (due 1/1/20)

Compliance and climate change
How to factor in climate change in business operations, the benefits of doing so, and the challenges your company might face during the transition

MAY (due 2/1/20)

Compliance ROI
What to measure, and how to demonstrate your program’s return on investment

JUNE (due 3/1/20)

M&A compliance
What risks are at work here, and how can you effectively communicate to help finalize a mergers and acquisitions transaction?

JULY (due 4/1/20)

‘FAR’ and OCI
The Federal Acquisition Regulation, organization conflict of interest, and how best to investigate allegations

AUGUST (due 5/1/20)

No weak links
For organizations implementing blockchain, what benefits and challenges should they anticipate?

SEPTEMBER (due 6/1/20)

Disagreeing tones from the top
Senior leaders can disagree on company culture and how best to steer operations. How can compliance teams work to ensure that the organization moves forward lawfully and ethically?

OCTOBER (due 7/1/20)

Measuring corporate culture
What are the benchmarks, and how can these measurements help compliance and ethics teams to improve work environments and values?

NOVEMBER (due 8/1/20)

Compliance ambassadors
It’s not only up to you! Who else can help extend the reach of your program, and how can you get them onboard?

DECEMBER (due 9/1/20)

Lessons learned
Compliance and ethics is a field full of valuable and insightful teachings. What have your experiences taught you?