CCB and its certifications get a new look

The Compliance Certification Board (CCB) is excited to announce the redesign of our CCB logo and the logos of each our certifications! It is important to us to that our certified individuals are able to use clear and simple logos to demonstrate their successful earning and renewal of their credential(s). For this reason, we have simplified and updated our certification logos.

Be sure to update and use our forthcoming Digital badging tool to share your certification(s) in professional communications such as letterhead, stationary, business cards, in directory listings, or in your signature. See more information about this upcoming and exciting new offering coming soon!

For access to use the new certification images, please email CCB@ComplianceCertification.org, and we will send you your certification logo information for use.

Note: certifications must now be verified and in active standing with CCB in order to be placed in professional communications such as letterhead, stationary, business cards, in directory listings, or in your signature.

New Digital Badging option to verify and showcase your certification

While CCB will continue to accept written requests (see steps below) to verify individuals certification status with the Compliance Certification Board (CCB) we are pleased to be offering you “Digital Badging.” Digital Badging allows you to more easily share your certification status with current or future employers, as well as share your achievement with colleagues, friends, and family. The best part is digital badges are 100% authenticated by CCB and embedded with qualifying information to verify your certification immediately when viewed by others. You can use this tool to place your active certification into professional communications such as letterhead, stationary, business cards, in directory listings, or in your signature. It is very important to us that we protect the integrity of our certifications and give individuals, as well as employers, a fast, efficient, and verified way to confirm an individual’s certification status.

For access to the new certification images email CCB@ComplianceCertification.org, and we will send you the steps to access your certification(s) logo information for use.

Certification Verification Request

CCB verifies active credentials on a regular basis. If you have a current or potential employer looking to verify your credential, here is the policy CCB follows:

1. The request must be made in writing—email, fax, or mail. Email inquiries can be sent to ccb@compliancecertification.org.
2. To process the request, a CCB certification specialist will contact the credential holder to authorize the release of the information; the authorization must be documented in writing.
3. CCB will respond in kind to the enquiring party once it has received your written authorization.

When contacting certification holders regarding authorizations for release of information, CCB uses the contact information in its database, which is also the information used to send courtesy renewal reminders or recertification information. Please be sure the contact information CCB has for you is the up to date.
Reminders for the Actively Certified

Don’t forget CCB certification holders have a 1-month grace period beyond their renewal month! For example, if your renewal period runs from August 1, 2017 to July 31, 2019, then your grace period is the period from Aug. 1, 2019 to Aug. 31, 2019. You do not need to contact CCB in order to use this one month grace period.

What if you need more than your one month grace period to earn and/or submit the CEUs required to maintain your certification? If additional time beyond your grace period is needed to earn CEUs, you may extend your renewal period by an additional 1 or 2 months by completing the Renewal Extension Request form, bit.ly/earnceus, and paying the applicable monthly extension fee. For example, if your renewal period runs from August 1, 2017 to July 31, 2019, and your grace period runs from August 1, 2019 to August 31, 2019, you could extend your renewal cycle a maximum of two more months to October 31, 2019. (A $50 monthly extension fee applies.)

Individuals who need to use the grace or extension periods should note that their next renewal date will be less than 24 months away, and will still require accumulation of 40 CCB CEUs in that reduced period of time. The renewal extension is only available for certification holders’ most recent active renewal period.

Using your grace period and the renewal extension allows you to extend your original certification end date for up to 3 months, but keep in mind, if all required CEUs are not received by CCB by your approved extended end date, your certification will lapse and retesting will be the only option to regain the certification.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: What is the difference between live vs non-live CEUs?

A: For purposes of continuing education, the term “live” training means that training was conducted in real-time: for example, a face-to-face conference or a real-time audio or web conference. Viewing a recorded web conference is not considered “live” training.

The term “non-live” refers to education that was not conducted in real-time: for example, Compliance Today or Compliance & Ethics Professional quizzes, recorded webinars/audio conferences, Report on Medicare Compliance attestations, etc.

It’s important to keep in mind that when it comes to renewing your certification or applying to sit for a CCB exam, at least 50% of the CEUs required come from “live” events or trainings. If you are looking to sit for an exam, this means that at least 10 of the 20 required CCB CEUs must be “live,” and if you are looking to renew a certification, at least 20 of the 40 required CCB CEUs must be “live.”

If you have any questions about whether the CEUs you have or plan to earn are considered “live” or “non-live,” contact CCB@ComplianceCertification.org for assistance.

For a listing of the various types of CEUs, both “live” and “non-live,” that you can earn and submit to CCB, check out page 3.
